

TOTAL LEADERSHIP

Developing you into a top public leader

“For me, the key learning was about being more mindful of impactful behaviour – thinking like a chief executive, checking how I work with politicians, and building my intelligence networks.”

The Total Leadership Programme is kindly sponsored by

This unique development programme is open to aspiring UK leaders, both within the public service sector itself and in organisations which work collaboratively in that space.

Participants will already be operating at senior executive level in this increasingly complex environment, and are seeking a stretching programme to further develop and future-proof their leadership approach.

Access is by formal application and an assessment which gauges your readiness for further development.

Applications are now open for the next intake in January 2019.

“From beginning to end the programme was excellent, enabling me through coaching, formal sessions, networking and meeting public leaders, to determine the next steps in my public leadership journey.”

OVERVIEW

This programme is designed by professional development specialists Solace and INLOGOV and delivered by academics from a Russell Group University to provide ‘kite-marked’ bespoke leadership development opportunities, carefully blending the latest cutting-edge academic theory with practical skills and knowledge, together with unique insights from high-profile speakers.

The programme is uniquely tailored to the particular needs of senior executive professional leaders within UK local government and commercial organisations within the public service space.

RIGOROUS GROUNDING IN EVIDENCE

Throughout, the programme is underpinned by extensive frontline experience in the sector and by UK and global research, which highlights the urgent need for sophisticated transformational leadership skills in a rapidly changing leadership context.

The programme provides external, expert and objective validation of the competence and capacity of each participant, supporting them to address the significant challenges of leading and managing integrated local public services. For employers, completion of this programme offers indisputable evidence of participants’ ability to carry out the demanding roles of such senior posts successfully, and the programme is now considered a pre-requisite for aspiring Chief Executives.

PIONEERING THE LATEST THINKING

Graduates of the programme are required to make a firm commitment to continuing professional development and to adhere to a new ethical code of standards for the way in which these newly acquired skills are exercised. This is a key element of Solace’s commitment to the promotion of excellence in public service leadership and management.

Programme fees are £4995 + VAT, inclusive of accommodation and all course materials.

RESULTS

The programme will help you decide you’re ready to be a chief executive, and enable you to confidently demonstrate key transformational leadership skills, including:

- n mediating contested leadership spaces and the political and managerial interface;
- n demonstrating strategic leadership, from vision to delivery;
- n leading transformation, both in systems and across organisations;
- n leading collaboratively across partnerships and alliances powerfully and effectively;
- n developing skills to operate successfully in an increasingly complex world;
- n understanding of the type of leadership skills and behaviours required for the future through exposure to real life experiences through the perspective of cutting-edge speakers.

Previous cohorts were drawn from all types of organisation working within local public services: districts, Mets, counties, London Boroughs, Scottish local government and other organisations working with the public sector. To date, seven past participants have secured their first Chief Executive role.

"I have been hugely impressed by the quality and dedication of Total Leadership participants, and it has been great to watch them benefit from the programme. They have gelled really well, and brought a wide range of experience and perspectives which they have shared openly and generously.

"Many of the participants have already seen significant career development and, just as importantly, personal growth, and we have been impressed with the level of progression. Many have found new roles, with as many moving up within their organisation as taking the next step with new employers.

"We want to build on this dynamism in the coming cohorts and also to start developing regular events for alumni to keep the momentum going for this great collection of leaders."

Programme Director

"The speaker was outstanding: 'lit a fire' in terms of her energy and enthusiasm."

PROGRAMME MODULES

INTRODUCTION, 31ST JANUARY

Participants will meet with each other and the design and delivery team, develop a common understanding of the programme, and help to shape it by contributing to its development.

MODULE 1: UNDERSTANDING THE CONTEXT OF YOUR LEADERSHIP, 6TH - 8TH MARCH

Participants will develop a deeper understanding of the local government leadership space which will inform their future thinking in the remainder of the programme.

MODULE 2: LEADING ACROSS THE SYSTEM: BUILDING ON REAL LIFE EXAMPLES & LEARNING FROM OTHER SYSTEMS, 16TH - 17TH MAY

Participants will have formed a view about how they will personally develop relationships of trust across the whole system locally and also how they might start to develop a national profile as an ambassador for place.

MODULE 3: LEADING INNOVATIVE & ENTREPRENEURIAL ORGANISATIONS, 18TH - 19TH JULY

Participants will gain a deeper appreciation of the perspectives of those they commission and explore what entrepreneurialism means in the local public sector context.

MODULE 4: WORKING IN UNCHARTERED TERRITORIES, 26TH - 27TH SEPTEMBER

Participants will be able to feel at ease with ideas of complexity, collaboration, agency and leverage. They will have developed a foundation on which to build further learning.

MODULE 5: DEVELOPING PERSONAL, AUTHENTIC LEADERSHIP INCLUDING PERSONAL BRANDING AND NARRATIVE, 14TH - 15TH NOVEMBER

Understanding how to create a positive public leadership narrative which helps you to engage with people to see you as a leader. Participants will explore how to offer their leadership to people through a narrative that they can relate to. This will include exploring how engagement with digital media changes and shapes that approach.
