A sector-led approach to improving local leadership

The Commissioning Academy for Elected Members explores the importance of political leadership as a means of improving commissioning and helps councillors to improve and develop the commissioning activity of their council.

VISION

About the programme

Councillors involved in the commissioning of services can develop their skills in this role at the Commissioning Academy for Elected Members, jointly developed by the Local Government Association and Cabinet Office Commissioning Academy. Learning about commissioning is essential for all councillors to assist them in their role in shaping the future of public services and deciding how to use limited resources to achieve specific local outcomes. These sessions will help councillors explore ways to improve the commissioning activity of their councils through political leadership.
